Census Bringing Jobs to Local Communities

Hundreds of Thousands will be Hired to Support U.S. Census Bureau's Goal of a Complete Count

The U.S. Census Bureau is gearing up for the 2010 Census—and it needs help to ensure everyone is counted. Hundreds of thousands of temporary workers are needed to fill a variety of census positions across the country. Area residents can apply to earn good weekly pay, enjoy flexible hours and be part of a historic opportunity to serve their communities.

The 2010 Census: Employees Making a Difference

Every 10 years, the Census Bureau is required by the U.S. Constitution to count each person residing in the United States—both citizens and non-citizens. This includes all 50 states, Washington , D.C. , America Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, Guam, Puerto Rico , and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

The census is a snapshot of the U.S. population, determining how many people reside within the nation's borders, who they are and where they live.

Population data collected through the census are used to allocate billions of dollars in annual federal funding for states and communities. The census also determines how many seats each state will have in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Census Bureau employees can help ensure their communities are accurately counted and don't miss out on their fair share of funding and political representation.

Temporary Census Jobs Offer Good Pay, Flexible Hours

Short-term 2010 Census jobs are ideal for retirees, college students, recent high school graduates, stay-at-home parents, those seeking a second job to earn extra cash and others seeking part-time work. Census jobs also offer flexible schedules and paid training, along with reimbursement for authorized mileage and expenses.
